NEW DAY DAWNS FOR FARMER

HOOVER GIVES FIRST MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

Legislative Program Designed to "Lay the Foundation" for a New Day In Agriculture

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, April 16.—A comprehensive legislative program designed to "lay the foundations for a new day in agriculture," was recommended by President Hoover today in his first message to congress.

Other recommendations of the chief executive were:

Limited tariff revision.

Reorganization and revitalization of the federal tariff commission, to bring about quicker decisions.

Elimination of the administrative red-tape in customs regulations under the existing tariff law.

Repeal of the national origins immigration formula.

Reapportionment of the house of representatives.

Provision for the decennial census in 1930.

"I have called this special session of congress to redeem two pledges given in the last election—farm relief and limited changes in the tariff," was Hoover's opening sentence.

The 2,000 word message was one of the briefest ever sent to congress from the White House.

To the congress of the United States:

I have called this special session of congress to redeem two pledges given in the last election—farm relief and limited changes in the tariff.

The difficulties of the agricultural industry arise out of a multitude of causes. A heavy indebtedness was inherited by the industry from the deflation processes of 1920. Disorderly and wasteful methods of marketing have developed.

The growing specialization in the industry has for years been increasing the proportion of products that now leave the farm and in consequence prices have been unduly depressed by congested marketing at the harvest or by the occasional climatic surpluses.

Railway rates have necessarily increased. There has been a growth of competition in the world markets from countries that enjoy cheaper labor or more nearly virgin soils. There was a great expansion of production from our marginal land during the war and upon these profitable enterprises under normal conditions cannot be maintained. Meanwhile their continued output tends to aggravate the situation. Local taxes have doubled and in some cases trebled. Work animals have been steadily replaced by mechanical appliances, thereby decreasing the consumption of farm products. There are many other contributing causes.

The general result has been that our agricultural industry has not kept pace in prosperity or standards of living with other lines of industry.

There being no disagreement as to the need of farm relief, the problem before us becomes one of method by which relief may be most successfully brought about. Because of the multitude of causes and because agriculture is not one industry but a score of industries, we are confronted not with a single problem alone but a great number of problems.

Therefore there is no single plan or principle that can be generally applied. Some of the forces working to the detriment of agriculture can be greatly mitigated by improving our waterway transportation; some of them by readjustment of the tariff; some by better understanding and adjustment of production needs; and some by improvement in the methods of marketing.

An effective tariff upon agricultural products, that will compensate the farmer's higher costs and higher standards of living has a dual purpose. Such a tariff not only protects the farmer in our domestic market but also stimulates him to diversify his crops and to grow products that he could not otherwise produce, and thus lessen his dependence upon exports to foreign markets.

The great expansion of production abroad under the conditions I have mentioned renders foreign competition in our export markets increasingly serious. It seems but natural, therefore, that the American farmer, having been greatly handicapped in his foreign market by such competition from the younger expanding countries, should ask that foreign access to our domestic markets should be regulated by taking into account the difference in our cost of production.

The government has a special mandate from the recent election not only to further develop our waterways and revise the agricultural tariff, but also to extend systematic relief in other directions.

I have long held that the multiplicity of causes of agricultural depression could only be met by the creation of a great instrumentality clothed with sufficient authority and resources to assist our farmers to meet these problems, each upon its own merits. The creation of such an agency would at once transfer the agricultural question from the field of politics into the realm of economics and would result in constructive action. The administration is pledged to create an instrumentality that will investigate the causes, find sound remedies and have the authority and resources to apply those remedies.

The pledged purpose of such a federal farm board is the reorganization of the marketing system on sounder and more stable and more economic lines. To do this the board will require funds to assist in creating and sustaining farmer-owned and farmer-controlled agencies for a variety of purposes, such as the acquisition of adequate warehousing and other facilities for marketing; adequate working capital to be advanced against commodities lodged for storage; necessary and prudent advances to corporations created and owned by farmers' marketing organizations for the purchase and orderly marketing of surpluses occasioned by climatic variations or by harvest congestion; to authorize the creation and support of clearing houses, especially for perishable products, through which, under producers' approval, co-operation can be established with distributors and processors to more orderly marketing of commodities and for the elimination of many wastes in distribution; and to provide for licensing of handlers of some perishable products so as to eliminate unfair practices. Every penny of waste between farmer and consumer that we can eliminate, whether it arises from methods of distribution or from hazard or speculation, will be a gain to both farmer and consumer.

In addition to these special provisions in the direction of improved returns, the board should be organized to investigate every field of economic betterment for the farmers so as to furnish guidance as to need in production, to devise methods for elimination of unprofitable marginal lands and their adaptation to other uses; to develop industrial by-products and to survey a score of other fields of helpfulness.

Certain safeguards must naturally surround these activities and the instrumentalities that are created. Certain vital principles must be adhered to in order that we may not undermine the freedom of our farmers and of our people as a whole by bureaucratic and governmental domination and interference. We must not undermine initiative.

There should be no fee or tax imposed upon the farmer. No governmental agency should engage in the buying and selling and price-fixing of products, for such courses can lead only to bureaucracy and domination. Government funds should not be loaned or facilities duplicated where other services of credit and facilities are available at reasonable rates. No activities should be set in motion that will result in increasing the surplus production, as such will defeat any plans of relief.

The most progressive movement in all agriculture has been the upbuilding of the farmer's own marketing organizations, which now embrace nearly two million farmers in membership and annually distribute nearly $2,500,000,000 worth of farm products. These organizations have acquired experience in virtually every branch of their industry, and furnish a substantial basis upon which to build further organization. Not all these marketing organizations are of the same type, but the test of them is whether or not they are farmer owned and controlled. In order to strengthen and not to undermine them, all proposals for governmental assistance should originate with such organizations and be the result of their application. Moreover, by such basis of organization, the government will be removed from engaging in the business of agriculture.

The difficulties of agriculture can not be cured in a day; they can not all be cured by legislation; they can not be cured by the federal government alone. But farmers and their organizations can be assisted to overcome these inequalities. Every effort of this character is an experiment, and we shall find from our former experience the way to further advance. We must make a start. With the creation of a great instrumentality of this character, of a strength and importance equal to that of those which we have created for transportation and banking, we give immediate assurance of the determined purpose of the government to meet the difficulties of which we are now aware, and to create an agency through which constructive action for the future will be assured.

In this treatment of this problem we recognize the responsibility of the people as a whole, and we shall lay the foundations for a new day in agriculture, from which we shall preserve to the nation great values of its individuality and strengthen our whole national fabric.

In considering the tariff for other industries than agriculture, we find that there have been economic shifts necessitating a readjustment of some of the tariff schedules. Seven years of experience under the tariff bill enacted in 1922 have demonstrated the wisdom of congress in the enactment of that measure. On the whole, it has worked well. In the main, our wages have been maintained at high levels; our imports and xeports have steadily increased; with some exceptions our manufacturing industries have been prosperous. Nevertheless, economic changes have taken place during that time, which have placed certain domestic products at a disadvantage and new industries have come into being, all of which creates the necessity for some limited changes in the schedules and in the administrative clauses of the laws as written in 1922.

It would seem to me that the test of necessity for revision is in the main whether there has been a substantial slackening of activity in any industry during the past few years, and a consequent decrease of employmet due to insurmountable competition in the products of that industry. It is not as if we were setting up a new basis of protective duties. We did that seven years ago. What we need to remedy now is whatever substantial loss of employment may have resulted from shifts since that time.

No discrimination against any foreign industry is involved in

"KEY" OF BILL PLACES IT UNDER ONE COMMISSIONER

STATE'S CONSERVATION AND REFORESTATION PROGRAM ENDORSED BY HOUSE

LAST WEEK SMALL GROUP IN SENATE THWARTED THE WHOLE PROJECT

By HECTOR PERRIER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

St. Paul, April 16.—Minnesota's conservation and reforestation program, boldly stamped with the approval of the house of representatives today was passed back to the senate where only last week "a small group of men who have set themselves up as the brains of the state" thwarted the project.

The "key" of the conservation bill which would place the natural resource departments of the state under one commissioner, who in turn would be guided by the executive council, had in addition to house approval the recommendation of the senate reforestation committee.

When Senator Fred W. Bessette of Orr, a leader in the reforestation fight, asked as chairman what was to be done with the conservation bill which was so badly mutilated in the senate last week that it was withdrawn by its authors, Senator Moses L. Frost, Jackson, replied:

"Let us give it our recommendation and put it squarely up to the senators. If they want to kill the bill let them take the blame. This committee and the house have done their duty.

Chief among the reforestation bills passed by the house were those which would provide for the creation of state forests with some 300,000 acres of tax delinquent northern Minnesota lands; encourage private forestry enterprises by reducing taxes to 5 cents an acre, and payment by the state to the counties of 5 cents an acre on all lands taken over for forests.

Senator Bessette has charged that State Auditor Ray P. Chase, who has often been mentioned as a gubernatorial candidate to succeed Governor Theodore Christianson, has attempted to discourage the passage of a reforestation program at the present time so that he may use it as a platform plank in his campaign.

Chase has not yet remarked on the charges.

At the same time the house also passed two bills designed to aid the tax delinquent land owners.

The first bill would authorize county commissioners to "compromise" with farmers who are delinquent in the payment of their taxes because of depression and drainage ditch bonds and accept part of the money owed as full payment.

The second would reduce the penalty on tax delinquency.

St. Paul, April 16.—At the suggestion of Rep. Hannah J. Kempfer of Erhard, the house late Monday by a vote of 77 to 22 killed a bill which would have moved the fishing zone boundary line from its present position to a point 60 miles north of St. Cloud.

The house previously had passed a bill which would have eliminated the two zones but the senate amended the measure and suggested that the boundary line be moved north.

A conference committee of the two houses agreed to the senate bill but the house threw the entire matter into the discard and voted to keep the present law for at least another two years.

The northern zone is now prohibited from fishing bass, rock bass, sunfish and crappies until June 21 while the season on the same fish in the southern zone opens May 29.

The north-south boundary line runs east and west through St. Cloud.

To the congress of the United States:

I have called this special session of congress to redeem two pledges given in the last election—farm relief and limited changes in the tariff.

The difficulties of the agricultural industry arise out of a multitude of causes. A heavy indebtedness was inherited by the industry from the deflation processes of 1920. Disorderly and wasteful methods of marketing have developed.

The pledged purpose of such a federal farm board is the reorganization of the marketing system on sounder and more stable and more economic lines. To do this the board will require funds to assist in creating and sustaining farmer-owned and farmer-controlled agencies for a variety of purposes, such as the acquisition of adequate warehousing and other facilities for marketing; adequate working capital to be advanced against commodities lodged for storage; necessary and prudent advances to corporations created and owned by farmers' marketing organizations for the purchase and orderly marketing of surpluses occasioned by climatic variations or by harvest congestion; to authorize the creation and support of clearing houses, especially for perishable products, through which, under producers' approval, co-operation can be established with distributors and processors to more orderly marketing of commodities and for the elimination of many wastes in distribution; and to provide for licensing of handlers of some perishable products so as to eliminate unfair practices. "KEY" OF BILL PLACES IT UNDER ONE COMMISSIONER

LAST WEEK SMALL GROUP IN SENATE THWARTED THE WHOLE PROJECT

By HECTOR PERRIER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

St. Paul, April 16.—Minnesota's conservation and reforestation program, boldly stamped with the approval of the house of representatives today was passed back to the senate where only last week "a small group of men who have set themselves up as the brains of the state" thwarted the project.

The "key" of the conservation bill which would place the natural resource departments of the state under one commissioner, who in turn would be guided by the executive council, had in addition to house approval the recommendation of the senate reforestation committee.

When Senator Fred W. Bessette of Orr, a leader in the reforestation fight, asked as chairman what was to be done with the conservation bill which was so badly mutilated in the senate last week that it was withdrawn by its authors, Senator Moses L. Frost, Jackson, replied:

"Let us give it our recommendation and put it squarely up to the senators. If they want to kill the bill let them take the blame. This committee and the house have done their duty.

Chief among the reforestation bills passed by the house were those which would provide for the creation of state forests with some 300,000 acres of tax delinquent northern Minnesota lands; encourage private forestry enterprises by reducing taxes to 5 cents an acre, and payment by the state to the counties of 5 cents an acre on all lands taken over for forests.

Senator Bessette has charged that State Auditor Ray P. Chase, who has often been mentioned as a gubernatorial candidate to succeed Governor Theodore Christianson, has attempted to discourage the passage of a reforestation program at the present time so that he may use it as a platform plank in his campaign.

Chase has not yet remarked on the charges.

At the same time the house also passed two bills designed to aid the tax delinquent land owners.

The first bill would authorize county commissioners to "compromise" with farmers who are delinquent in the payment of their taxes because of depression and drainage ditch bonds and accept part of the money owed as full payment.

The second would reduce the penalty on tax delinquency.

St. Paul, April 16.—At the suggestion of Rep. Hannah J. Kempfer of Erhard, the house late Monday by a vote of 77 to 22 killed a bill which would have moved the fishing zone boundary line from its present position to a point 60 miles north of St. Cloud.

The house previously had passed a bill which would have eliminated the two zones but the senate amended the measure and suggested that the boundary line be moved north.

A conference committee of the two houses agreed to the senate bill but the house threw the entire matter into the discard and voted to keep the present law for at least another two years.

The northern zone is now prohibited from fishing bass, rock bass, sunfish and crappies until June 21 while the season on the same fish in the southern zone opens May 29.

The north-south boundary line runs east and west through St. Cloud.

BRAINERD 25 YEARS AGO

From the Daily Dispatch

April 16, 1904

Rev. Habekost of this city, yesterday read a paper before the district conference of the German Lutheran ministers in session at Fergus Falls.

Burglars last evening entered the stores of A. E. Moberg and Olaf Skauge drug store. Entrance into the stores was made by breaking the window panes in the rear of the buildings. As far as could be ascertained, they took only a small amount of cash. The work of the burglars was very crude and is thought to be that of boys.

Mrs. Joseph Scharfen, of East Brainerd, passed away last evening at her home after a brief illness of one week. She is survived by her husband, a daughter and one brother, all living in Brainerd.

Mrs. J. N. Nevers returned from the Twin Cities this afternoon where she has been visiting for a short time.

B. A. Wright returned from Aitkin this afternoon where he went a few days ago on business.

ELKS TO HAVE RADIO PARTY SOON

Smoker and Appropriate Program to be Held on Saturday Evening, May 18

MURRAY HULBERT SPEAKS

Grand Exalted Ruler of All the Elks on the Air Between 7:30 and 8 O'clock

On Saturday evening, May 18, Brainerd Elks lodge will have a smoker and radio party, plus an appropriate program, on the occasion of Grand Exalted Ruler Murray Hulbert's address, which will be received by radio between the hours of 7:30 and 8 o'clock.

The Grand Exalted Ruler will visit Minnesota on May 18. He cannot come in person to every lodge. He asked a committee consisting of W. C. Robertson, chairman of the ritual committee of the grand lodge, Judge William Ericson, president of the State Association and the district deputies, to act as a committee to decide which lodge he should visit. They declared it was a hard problem to determine and finally reached the decision that the best plan was to have him "visit" all the lodges at one time over the radio.

Arrangements have been made for WCCO to broadcast his speech at the hour named.

The Brainerd lodge will also hold a joint meeting of the social and community welfare and the membership committees to arrange for a membership campaign this summer in order to initiate a large class this fall.

All Elks are urged to attend this pep meeting and to hear Grand Exalted Ruler Hulbert over the radio.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

THE farmers' long cry for agricultural equality has been answered by President Herbert Hoover in his message to the special congress which convened yesterday. Hoover advocates a federal farm board "of strength and importance equal to that of those which we have created for transportation and banking." The president seeks "the re-organization of the marketing system on sounder and more stable and more economic lines."

Experts examining his plan closely believe the new agricultural measure has the earmarks of the McNary-Haugen bill so far as general scope and practical aims is concerned, but is minus the disturbing equalization fee.

"Certain vital principles must be adhered to in order that we may not undermine the freedom of our farmers and of our people as a whole by bureaucratic and governmental domination and interference," continues Mr. Hoover.

"We must not undermine initiative. There should be no fee or tax imposed upon the farmer. No governmental agency should engage in buying and selling and price fixing of products, for such courses can lead only to bureaucracy and domination."

"Government funds should not be loaned, or facilities duplicated, where other services of credit and facilities are available at reasonable rates. No activities should be set in motion that will result in increasing the surplus production, as such will defeat any plans of relief."

"Farmer-owned and farmer-controlled agencies should work out the plan," said the president.

"The most progressive movement in all agriculture has been the upbuilding of the farmer's own marketing organizations, which now embrace nearly 2,000,000 farmers in membership and annually distribute two billion and a half dollars worth of farm products. In order to strengthen and not undermine them, all proposals for government assistance should originate with such organizations and be the result of their application," said he.

In speaking of the tariff, the president said "that the test of necessity for revision is in the main whether there has been a substantial slackening of activity in an industry during the past few years, and a consequent decrease of employment due to insurmountable competition in the products of that industry."

LET'S PATCH UP THIS ROAD

WE are back to the old days when the worst stretch of highway was in the immediate vicinity of Brainerd. We refer especially to Trunk Highway No. 2, where the gravel starts beyond the paving.

As stated by Klos Schon of Oak Lawn township, the gravel from 5 miles out of Brainerd to Aitkin is in fair shape and all the trouble comes in three mud holes found in the stretch between the Oak street paving and the Oak Lawn town hall.

At the start of No. 2 at the paving and No. 18 running to Mille Lacs lake one sees highway signs which state the roads are impassable and that the car owner drives at his own risk.

But in the matter of trade to Brainerd, in the interests of our merchants, in the interests of farm and range people who want to get to Brainerd, the county seat, we should do something to facilitate improvement in Trunk Highway No. 2. The mud holes have appeared every wet season. They should be riprapped and filled in and given solid footing.

ENJOYS READING DISPATCH

THE DISPATCH is a letter from home and its greatest enjoyment and thrill comes to them who now live far from Brainerd. In a letter to the Dispatch, B. E. Dunham, now in business at Los Angeles, writes:

"I just happened to be sitting and reading the Dispatch and saw the article about the busy bee and will say that you have got a very fine memory as this incident happened at least ten years ago. As I recollect it we were driving to or from the Twin Cities when the bee flew into my sleeve and stung me. Am I correct?

"We more than enjoy the Dispatch and note that Brainerd is having several business changes. We saw Mr. Skauge and enjoyed talking to him about the old home town. It seems funny not to see snow on the ground this winter. Summer every day here."

ONE must keep books on the legislature to see what happens to various measures. Passage in the house does not necessarily mean that the senate is of the same mind. A measure may pass the house in the morning and the vote may be reconsidered and the measure killed on another vote before evening sets in. The senate may receive a house bill and so amend it that its author will not recognize his own child.

ADVANCE copies of new lake literature compiled by the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce and assisting groups headline attention to Crow Wing county but forget to designate the county as located in Minnesota. If Crow Wing county were so well known that we would not need the state attached, then we would not require any advertising.

THE lowly cigaret has been much maligned as the cause of starting many brush and other fires. Now comes a former forest ranger at Brainerd and says that bottles have caused many fires. The sun, when properly focused on an empty bottle, sends out hot rays and the impromptu burning glass sets fire to grass, etc.

THE year 1928 has been characterized as "the year of mergers," says the New York Times, but from present indications it will be light in comparison to the combinations to be put together in 1929. Conversations between no less than two dozen corporations engaged in various lines of business are under way.

IT is the concern of every taxpayer to see that all units of government are efficiently, economically and honestly administered. Until that is done taxes will continue to climb.

THE retail store movement of the catalog houses is further shown in branch retail stores to be opened in Winona and Duluth.

equalizing the difference in cost of production at home and abroad and thus taking from foreign producers the advantages they derive from paying lower wages to labor. Indeed, such equalization is not only a measure of social justice at home, but by the lift it gives to our standards of living we increase the demand for those goods from abroad that we do not ourselves produce. In a large sense we have learned that the cheapening of the toiler decreases rather than promotes permanent prosperity because it reduces the consuming power of the people.

In determining changes in our tariff we must not fail to take into account the broad interests of the country as a whole, and such interests include our trade relations with other countries. It is obviously unwise protection which sacrifices a greater amount of employment in exports to gain a less amount of employment from imports.

I am impressed with the fact that we also need important revision in some of the administrative phases of the tariff. The tariff commission should be reorganized and placed upon a basis of higher salaries in order that we may at all times command men of the broadest attainments. Seven years of experience have proved the principle of flexible tariff to be practical, and in the long view a most important principle to maintain. However, the basis upon which the tariff commission makes its recommendations to the president for administrative changes in the rates of duty should be made more automatic and more comprehensive to the end that the time required for determinations by the tariff commission shall be greatly shortened. The formula upon which the commission must now act often requires that years be consumed in reaching conclusions where it should require only months. Its very purpose is defeated by delays. I believe a formula can be found that will insure rapid and accurate determination of needed changes in rates. With such strengthening of the tariff commission and of its basis for action many secondary changes in tariff can well be left to action by the commission which at the same time will give complete security to industry for the future.

Furthermore, considerable weaknesses on the administrative side of the tariff have developed, especially in the valuations for assessments of duty. There are cases of undervaluations that are difficult to discover without access to the books of foreign manufacturers, which they are reluctant to offer. This has become also a great source of friction abroad. There is increasing shipment of goods on consignment, particularly by foreign shippers to concerns that they control in the United States, and this practice makes valuation difficult to determine. I believe it is desirable to furnish to the treasury a sounder basis for valuation in these and other cases.

It is my understanding that it is the purpose of the leaders of congress to confine the deliberations of the session mainly to the questions of farm relief and tariff. In this policy I concur. There are, however, certain matters of emergency legislation that were partially completed in the last session, such as the decennial census, the reapportionment of congressional representation, and the suspension of the national origins clause of the immigration act of 1924, together with some minor administrative authorizations. I understand that these measures can be re-undertaken without unduly extending the session. I recommend their consummation as being in the public interest.

Unnecessary Smoke Is New York's Great Health Menace

PROF. HORTON H. SHELDON

WHAT a beautiful clear day it is! That's a New Yorker speaking, and, in all probability, there's only about 2,100 tons of dust particles drifting around in the air. Just a few hundred tons more makes it a cloudy Pittsburgh-like day.

Prof. Horton H. Sheldon of the Physics Department of New York University is helping the health department clear the great city of its [illegible] Not cigarette smoke, either, but [illegible] business s-m-o-k-e. He climbs around the town with his little "cinder catcher," stopping every once in a while in some smoke populated district to grab errant cinders which have strayed too far from their home chimney.

Just think, there's over one trillion cubic feet of air in the atmosphere around New York, to say nothing of the immeasurable quantity of "hot air." On a nice clear day the cinder catching professor has found that if he could get all the cinders in one spot they would weigh 2,100 tons. And that's a lot of cinders.

All joking aside, New York's air is getting too full of soot and smoke to suit the health authorities and something is being done about it. Tests made in residential sections of the city show the minimum as stated above. Just imagine what it must be in the heart of the manufacturing sections, where there are so many chimneys per block.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

THE farmers' long cry for agricultural equality has been answered by President Herbert Hoover in his message to the special congress which convened yesterday. Hoover advocates a federal farm board "of strength and importance equal to that of those which we have created for transportation and banking." The president seeks "the re-organization of the marketing system on sounder and more stable and more economic lines."

Experts examining his plan closely believe the new agricultural measure has the earmarks of the McNary-Haugen bill so far as general scope and practical aims is concerned, but is minus the disturbing equalization fee.

"Certain vital principles must be adhered to in order that we may not undermine the freedom of our farmers and of our people as a whole by bureaucratic and governmental domination and interference," continues Mr. Hoover.

"We must not undermine initiative. There should be no fee or tax imposed upon the farmer. No governmental agency should engage in buying and selling and price fixing of products, for such courses can lead only to bureaucracy and domination."

"Government funds should not be loaned, or facilities duplicated, where other services of credit and facilities are available at reasonable rates. No activities should be set in motion that will result in increasing the surplus production, as such will defeat any plans of relief."

"Farmer-owned and farmer-controlled agencies should work out the plan," said the president.

"The most progressive movement in all agriculture has been the upbuilding of the farmer's own marketing organizations, which now embrace nearly 2,000,000 farmers in membership and annually distribute two billion and a half dollars worth of farm products. In order to strengthen and not undermine them, all proposals for government assistance should originate with such organizations and be the result of their application," said he.

In speaking of the tariff, the president said "that the test of necessity for revision is in the main whether there has been a substantial slackening of activity in an industry during the past few years, and a consequent decrease of employment due to insurmountable competition in the products of that industry."

LET'S PATCH UP THIS ROAD

WE are back to the old days when the worst stretch of highway was in the immediate vicinity of Brainerd. We refer especially to Trunk Highway No. 2, where the gravel starts beyond the paving.

As stated by Klos Schon of Oak Lawn township, the gravel from 5 miles out of Brainerd to Aitkin is in fair shape and all the trouble comes in three mud holes found in the stretch between the Oak street paving and the Oak Lawn town hall.

At the start of No. 2 at the paving and No. 18 running to Mille Lacs lake one sees highway signs which state the roads are impassable and that the car owner drives at his own risk.

But in the matter of trade to Brainerd, in the interests of our merchants, in the interests of farm and range people who want to get to Brainerd, the county seat, we should do something to facilitate improvement in Trunk Highway No. 2. The mud holes have appeared every wet season. They should be riprapped and filled in and given solid footing.

ENJOYS READING DISPATCH

THE DISPATCH is a letter from home and its greatest enjoyment and thrill comes to them who now live far from Brainerd. In a letter to the Dispatch, B. E. Dunham, now in business at Los Angeles, writes:

"I just happened to be sitting and reading the Dispatch and saw the article about the busy bee and will say that you have got a very fine memory as this incident happened at least ten years ago. As I recollect it we were driving to or from the Twin Cities when the bee flew into my sleeve and stung me. Am I correct?

"We more than enjoy the Dispatch and note that Brainerd is having several business changes. We saw Mr. Skauge and enjoyed talking to him about the old home town. It seems funny not to see snow on the ground this winter. Summer every day here."

ONE must keep books on the legislature to see what happens to various measures. Passage in the house does not necessarily mean that the senate is of the same mind. A measure may pass the house in the morning and the vote may be reconsidered and the measure killed on another vote before evening sets in. The senate may receive a house bill and so amend it that its author will not recognize his own child.

ADVANCE copies of new lake literature compiled by the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce and assisting groups headline attention to Crow Wing county but forget to designate the county as located in Minnesota. If Crow Wing county were so well known that we would not need the state attached, then we would not require any advertising.

THE lowly cigaret has been much maligned as the cause of starting many brush and other fires. Now comes a former forest ranger at Brainerd and says that bottles have caused many fires. The sun, when properly focused on an empty bottle, sends out hot rays and the impromptu burning glass sets fire to grass, etc.

THE year 1928 has been characterized as "the year of mergers," says the New York Times, but from present indications it will be light in comparison to the combinations to be put together in 1929. Conversations between no less than two dozen corporations engaged in various lines of business are under way.

IT is the concern of every taxpayer to see that all units of government are efficiently, economically and honestly administered. Until that is done taxes will continue to climb.

THE retail store movement of the catalog houses is further shown in branch retail stores to be opened in Winona and Duluth.

GAME BETWEEN SENATORS AND ATHLETICS POSTPONED ACCOUNT OF HEAVY RAIN

JUPITER PLUVIUS ALSO THREATENS IN 4 OTHER CITIES OF BIG LEAGUES

Washington, April 16.—(UP) — Walter Johnson's debut as a manager of the team on which he starred for 23 years, was delayed a day by rain here today.

The game between the Senators and the Athletics at which President Hoover was to have pitched the first ball, was postponed on account of rain which has fallen for more than 20 hours.

Boston, April 16. — Rain today caused postponement until tomorrow of the opening game of the season between the Boston Braves and the Brooklyn Robins.

New York, April 16—The opening game between the New York Yankees and the Boston Red Sox was postponed today because of rain and cold.

Philadelphia, April 16—The opening National League game between the Phillies and the New York Giants here was postponed today because of rain.

New York, April 16.—One quarter of a million baseball fans will witness the start of the major league pennant races this afternoon if the weather man permits, and ten times that number will listen in over the radio to accounts of the opening games.

With rain threatened in at least four of the eight cities in which games are scheduled, however, it seemed highly probable that postponements would be in order.

Rain threatened at New York, where the New York Yankees were due to raise the American League pennant as well as that of the world championship before their scheduled game with the Boston Red Sox. A similar situation existed at Cleveland, Boston and Philadelphia.

Provided both major league pennant races got under way by mid-afternoon, the nation's fans were promised the spectacle of new faces, new hopes and old favorites in action.

The New York Yankees presented at third and Leo Durocher at short a changed line-up with Mark Koenig stop, while Babe Ruth was said to be in a hurry to get down to the little church around the corner to register his marriage vows with Claire Hodgson, a former Follies girl.

Down in Washington, where Pres. Hoover was slated to throw out the first ball, the Athletics and the Washington Senators, both with new line-ups, were to begin the pursuit o. the world's champions.

The Detroit Tigers, under new leadership, take on the Cleveland Indians, one of the clubs in the American League definitely assigned by the experts to a second division berth.

At St. Louis, one of the few cities where reasonably favorable baseball weather is promised, the battling Browns, picked by some to come through and win the pennant, engage the Chicago White Sox.

The New York Giants open at Philadelphia, against a club which has suffered misfortunes during the spring training period when least able to give away anything to its opponents.

The most interesting club in the National League from the point of view of every fan is the Chicago Cubs. Having acquired Rogers Hornsby, the Cubs are hopeful of winning their first pennant in a dozen seasons. They open today, weather permitting, against the Pittsburgh Pirates, a most uncertain aggregation.

Boston fans will have a chance to view their National League contenders under the leadership of President Judge Emil Fuchs, who also is manager of the Braves. The Brooklyn Robins will be guests in the Hub this week.

"Play Ball!" 's the Cry

By QUIN HALL

TODAY, in eight major league cities of the United States, the barrier is lifted for the 1929 baseball season. While some cities enjoyed major league exhibition games during the Spring training, the real clouting does not get under way in earnest until this afternoon when the teams make their get away on what promises to be the most exciting season the fans have had in some years.

There has always been a tussle for top honors in the National League, and this year it seems that the gallop in the American League is not one of the things which can be referred to as "in the bag." While many of the sharpshooters are again picking the Yankees to repeat, a few of the clubs in the junior circuit have put extra punch in their line up, and this may mean almost anything during the long Summer grind. The Yanks, crippled, staggered through to a win last Fall and then knocked off the Cardinals by taking four in a row, but the St. Louis club was washed up at the close of the regular season.

The Athletics, who are being touted by many as the banner winners this season, didn't look very strong in their conditioning in Florida. Connie Mack hurried his crowd into exhibition games early and the boys spent much time bumping around in busses. The Browns were brought along slowly by Howley, who had a team training at West Palm Beach which looked mighty promising. Washington, under the new Walter Johnson management, is a question mark until the season gets a little older. The Senators may be a big success or they be a terrific flop. Boston doesn't look much heftier than last year although Carrigan had a big gang working out at Bradenton and will open the year with several new faces in his line-up. Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland seem stronger than a year ago. Bucky Harris, at Detroit, is looked upon as a smart pilot, and may uncork a sensation in the speed town. In the National League, Chicago, Pittsburgh and New York are being doped as leading contenders in this year's canter.

St. Louis, the other club which is favored to be a trouble maker in the senior circuit, did its Spring work at Avon Park and didn't appear to be any too strong. When we saw them in action, most of the first string infield was out of the line-up.

Of the other clubs in Florida, Cincinnati and the Phillies looked the best. Like the A's, the Reds did a lot of bus riding which, apparently, would seem to wear them down rather than build them up. After looking fairly capable early in the Spring, the Boston Braves looked rather terrible before they headed north. The combination of Fuchs, Evers and Gowdy will have its hands full trying to pull anything resembling a ball club out of the fire.

A lot of the Brooklyn strength depends on how Glenn Wright works in the infield. Late in reporting, Wright can help Robbie tremendously if he is playing as he did in 1927.

But none of the clubs in Florida looked really dangerous. The Cards, naturally, rank highest, but the winner should be picked from the Pirates, Giants and Cubs.

CONVENTION ECHOES

By ROGER KLEVEN

Before a crowd of about 1,000 student journalists assembled in the armory the National Scholastic Press Association opened its convention Thursday, April 11 at 7:45 P. M. with an address by Prof. E. Marion Johnson of the Department of Journalism, University of Minnesota. Prof. Johnson spoke on "That Thing Called Journalism." Friday's program opened at 8:45 with a speech by Samuel M. Williams, Editor-in-Chief of the St. Paul Dispatch and Pioneer Press. Mr. Williams' humorous manner in his address, "The Newspaper Man of Tomorrow" drew many a chuckle from his audience. After the convocation, the official convention picture was snapped, which was followed by a series of 2 round-table discussions held in various buildings on the campus. At 1:30 the same afternoon another convocation was held, the topic of which was, "Brains, Brawn and Bunk" given by James C. Lawrence, Administrative Executive at the U. of M. Two more sessions or round-table groups were held Friday afternoon. At 6:30 Friday evening the brightest event in the convention schedule was held, the banquet in the New Nicollet Hotel. The banquet and entertainment was the best obtainable and was enjoyed to the utmost by the delegates.

Fred W. Beckman, Editor of the "Farmer's Wife" gave the address at the Saturday morning convocation after which there were 3 roundtable groups.

The final convocation was given by Neil M. Swanson, Managing Editor of the Minneapolis Journal. The topic was "Journalism As a Life Work." After the final announcements and reports, the convention adjourned.

All these speeches were concerned with newspaper life and the speakers made clear the fact that journalism has its sorrows as well as its joys, but all the embryo journalists present were fired by an enthusiasm to carry on the work allotted to them with the hope of presenting to their respective high schools better and finer editions.

We who were present were likewise animated and we hope to accomplish mush as a result of this convention.

B. H. S. REPRESENTED IN LITERARY PUBLICATION

Brainerd High School was highly honored this year by being represented in the "Gateway," a Minnesota High School Anthology issued once every two years under the auspices of Macalester College. The publication contains the finest of all high school literary efforts. The article that Brainerd High School contributed was William McClenahan's essay entitled "One of Ten Thousand," a vivid description of a northern Minnesota lake scene for which he received the first prize in the statewide contest sponsored by the Isaac Walton League last fall—the purpose of the contest being to arouse an interest in the beauty of Minnesota.

St. Cloud, Minneapolis, Belgrade, Rochester, and Duluth were among those schools represented in the magazine.

Brainerd is exceedingly proud of Billy McClenahan who succeeded in placing us among the honored few who are represented in this exclusive paper.

This paper is a great invention;
The school gets all the fame;
The printer gets the money

Evodia Carlson, pupil of Miss Evelyn Hanson of McPhail School of Music, participated in a piano recital given at the school auditorium in Minneapolis Thursday evening. Liezt's "Liebestraum" and "Seguidilla" by Albiniz were Evodia's contributions to the program.

VOLUME 7 BRAINERD HIGH SCHOOL, TUESDAY, APRIL 16, 1929 Number 27

EVODIA CARLSON AND WM. McCLENAHAN EARN THE JOSTEN CITIZENSHIP AWARDS

VOTED THE BEST ALL AROUND SENIORS BY CLASS AND CLUB OFFICERS

Every year the Josten Manufacturing Company of Owatonna offers a green gold medal to the boy and the girl who are chosen as the most representative Seniors. The Gopher at the University publishes every year the few chosen as the best all around Seniors. The qualifications are the same for this award: scholarship, character and participation in outside activities. The two voted on by the faculty and the club and class officers are excellent students and have been active in various lines of endeavor—

Evodia Carlson stands high in scholarship, is chairman of the Senior refreshment committee, has always been active in class activities, plays the piano well and often accompanies the Glee Clubs and with all that cheerfully types for the Brainonian.

William McClenanan ranks next in scholarship, is editor of the Brainonian, has played in the orchestra, was leading man in the class play, sings in the male quartette, and is taking part in the Brainonian Vaudeville.

The staff feels that the choice is very wisely made, and congratulates Evodia and Billy on the honor conferred upon them.

Material for this issue was collected by three senior girls, Lois White, Edith Heald and Edythe Titus, in the absence of the editors who attended the N. S. P. A. This edition might well be called a senior edition since, in addition to the work of the senior reporter, the activities editor and the alumni editor, all the typing was done by seniors, namely Mildred Prentice, Edythe Titus and Evodia Carlson.

Sauer: "Did you hear about the man who got hurt last week?"

Laur: "No—it—was it serious?"

Sauer: "Yes, he sat down on the spur of the moment."

SENIORS SUFFER AFTER EFFECTS OF TESTS, WED.

"There oughtn't to be any school this afternoon," was the general feeling expressed by the Seniors after they finished the two and one-half hour College Aptitude Test given in the assembly of the Old Court House last Wednesday morning. The current topic among the Seniors even yet involves heated discussions as to the synonyms of various words, and the positive cruelty of judging one on such a hurried and difficult test.

Despite the various after-effects of this exam—stiff necks, broken pencils, eye-strain, hunger, muddled brains and complaints of too great a strain on concentrating faculties, the students will admit that they gained one point at least from the test—a definite knowledge of how little they actually know!

Professor Root of the Psychology department of Hamline University, superintended the giving of the test which consisted of two separate sections, vocabulary drills and English exercises. The vocabulary section drove home one very significant point in particular—the importance of the meaning of words.

Results of the test will be sent to Miss Tornstrom. This report will include each student's mark and the Association's advice as to the advisability of this student's attending college based on the grade he made. This information will be available at Miss Tornstrom's office in the near future.

THE FACULTY

Miss Schow, our English and Algebra instructor, was born just two blocks from the old prison at Stillwater in our native state.

Spending one year at the Stillwater High School, she journeyed to Minneapolis where she attended East high school. From there she went to the University of Minnesota, from which she graduated.

During her years at college she was exceedingly interested in clubs, and she admits that her main hobbies are hiking, reading and music. The various places in which she has taught are South Dakota, Nebraska and Minnesota. She recently taught at Deerwood and Cass Lake. She has been one of our faculty for nine years.

B. H. S. Boys Participate in 'Y' Basketball Meet

Lawrence Swanson, John Gabioi and Earl Fuller of the B. H. S. were members of the Brainerd Y. M. C. A. basketball team which played at the Y. M. C. A. state tournament held in St. Paul, Friday and Saturday. The first game in which the local boys participated was with the Mankato Y. in which they were defeated, 33 to 28 in an overtime period. Saturday morning Brainerd won over the Minneapolis Y. by default.

The Duluth Manhattan club, well known throughout the state were the next opponents but because of practice and better all-around playing ability, they were able to defeat the Brainerd basketeers by the decisive score of 48 to 18. This certainly is no disgrace to the home team for all basketball fans are well-aware of the Manhattan club's prowess.

"Sorrow, worry, hardships over,
Spring again is once more here!"

GRADE PUPIL SUGGESTS NAME FOR B. H. S. TEAM

The following letter was received by Coach Kasch in regard to the name to be selected for his future athletes.

Lowell School, 5th Grade.
March 24, 1929.

Dear Mr. Kasch:

I would suggest that you call the Brainerd team the "Woodticks." They are stickers and we have lots of them around Brainerd.

Signed,
A Grade Schooler.

A special Freshman meeting was called by the president last Friday, the chief purpose being the collection of tardy dues. Class colors, pins and rings were also discussed. No definite settlement was made however, the cause of the delay being the need of replenishing the treasury.

YE EDITOR

During our absence while attending the National Scholastic Press Association convention in Minneapolis last week, the material for this issue of the Brainonian was prepared by the three Senior members of the staff, Edith Titus, Lois White and Edith Heald. We are very grateful to these girls for relieving us this week so we were able to attend the conference without having to worry. We especially wish to thank the school for the wonderful opportunity offered us and we believe that we have profited a great deal from the convention. The suggestions and ideas received there were exceedingly helpful and we will attempt to put them into practice in our own Brainonian to make it a bigger and better paper.

PROS AND CONS

We are awaiting Senior Dress-up Day with breathless interest. We want to stand by and watch the usual parade of coons, gypsies and rustic Reubens. Two to one, we'll bet there'll be some.

Have you heard the latest "High Hat" song? The Rotarians heard it at the banquet given them by the faculty last week. It goes like this: "Now, if High Hat the Wings of an Angel" and it can be sung very touchingly by Mr. LaMeter.

To Spring (With Incidental Music)

TRA LA LA LA LA LA,
SPRING IS HERE AGAIN;
TRA LA LA LA LA LA—
Well, what are you going to do about it?

THOUGHTS WHILE STROLLING TO CLASS AT THE COURT HOUSE: I'd better hurry—No, here comes a train to bar my pathway—Pshaw, it's only an engine—I can't demonstrate that theorem—Should have stayed in last night and studied for a change—What to do? What to do? Some mountains are only bluffs—I'll try one—Here's class—Oh, Well!

Pet Peeves

The girl who chews life savers.
The teacher who doesn't announce quizzes.
The boy who snaps his gum.

We understand that the Brainonian adviser was very much disappointed when Senior dress-up day was postponed. Space must be filled. Do your best for the next issue, Seniors.

One of our faculty rushed up to a Brainerd policeman last week and screeched, "Officer, officer, that fellow was getting fresh with me."

Do you remember any telephone conversation you may have had when the other fellow playfully told you to "guess who this is"? Well, you don't know who wrote this column and we don't care to reveal our identity, so we too, coyly ask you to guess who did it.

If any students plan to go to Italy next summer, remember you don't have to eat the skins to enjoy bologna.

I know it is not proper,
I know it is not nice,
But the bird who howls the loudest
Usually gets the extra slice.

ALUMNI

Charles Van Alstine, who graduated in 1920, visited at school Thursday. Charles has just returned from mining copper in Chile. Three years and a half in the southland convinced him that North America is a better place to live in. He has had many interesting experiences, and prefers that they be a background in his life rather than something to go back to. He expects to spend a month in Brainerd.

Bernice Samuelson, class of '26 Brainerd high school, is a member of the Schumann Ladies Chorus of Gustavus Adolphus College which opened an eight day concert tour of churches belonging to the Minnesota conference, Sunday. Brainerd is one of the cities included in the itinerary of the chorus. The concluding concert will be broadcast from radio station WCCO while being presented in the First Lutheran church in St. Paul.

Miss Samuelson, who is an important member of the second soprano section of the chorus ,is also tour photographer.

MRS. J. A. THABES GIVES ILLUSTRATED BIRD LECTURE TO BIOLOGY STUDENTS

THE FACULTY

Brainerd claims to have the honor of being the birthplace of Miss Winifred Spencer, our math instructor.

She attended the Whittier school and later our local high school. After graduating here, Miss Spencer left for Carleton College where she majored in mathematics.

After completing her course at Northfield, Miss Spencer taught at Ashby, Minnesota, and then returned to her home town. This is her first year at Brainerd, but we hope that she will remain as a member of our faculty for many long years.

Her main hobby is driving and the Freshmen have been fortunate in securing her as their adviser.

Mrs. Cobb Reviews Book Before Social Class

Mrs. W. C. Cobb reviewed James J. Davis' recent book on "Selective Immigration" before Miss Herwig's Social Problems class last Tuesday morning. This book is considered one of the best available on immigration today and the class was very fortunate in having one so capable as Mrs. Cobb to review it for them.

The review showed that immigration must be restricted for social, political and economic reasons. The best law thus far passed is the 2 per cent law of 1924 and it is hoped that this law may be restored by the special congressional session.

The class is very grateful to Mrs. Cobb for having given so unselfishly of her time and energy in this excellent review.

LECTURE GIVEN FRIDAY MORNING IN COURT HOUSE ASSEMBLY

On Friday in the hour before noon, Mrs. J. A. Thabes gave a bird lecture with colored slides to all the biology students. About two hundred listened to her very interesting talk. Due to the inconveniences of the old court house, it was impossible to get the room sufficiently dark to get the full benefit of the slides, but the explanations more than made up for the blurring of the pictures.

The theme of Mrs. Thabes' speech was the migrations of the birds. In the course of her talk she gave some very pertinent facts as to the number and variety of birds in Minnesota at the various seasons of the year: i. e. there are 312 species of birds in Minnesota, of which 216 nest here and 37 are permanent residents.

She spoke of the great drama now going on, when birds are travelling thousands of miles guided by some unknown force that gives strength to the ruby throated humming bird to cross the 700 miles of Gulf in one night without stopping, to the Black Polled Warbler to travel from Venezuela or Alaska; and to the heron gulls to keep so close to the calendar that they time their long journey so that their arrival here varies by only two or three days from year to year. She mentioned, too, that the bird banding system of today would prove in a few years whether or not the blue-jay that winters here is the same one that seems to appear suddenly in the spring.

In addition to facts and figures, she made some interesting statements about various birds, such as the ruby throated humming bird is the only one that can put its "engine in reverse" and back up, and remain almost motionless in the air; that the brown creeper braces himself on a tree trunk by his tail; that the heron gull appears when the ice is just melting along the shore; that at Gull lake is the largest heron refuge in the United States; that the varied diet of birds saves civilization; that the horned lark is the earliest immigrant, appearing in early February and laying its eggs before the snow is gone, and that the even bird goes to school, for all day he says, "Teacher, teacher."

These are but a few of the facts imparted to the students today. As they are just now studying the birds, they thoroughly enjoyed and appreciated Mrs. Thabes' talk.

CAMPFIRE GIRLS WORK FOR HONORS AT PARTY

The girls had a progressive party last Wednesday evening at the city hall. Honors were given at each table for the following work:

I. Wrap 3 packages. (Something fragile, something soft and a box).

II. Read a fever thermometer. (Know how to sterilize it, and know the average temperature of adults and children).

III. Know the history and writer of "The Star Spangled Banner" and "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

IV. Learn the origin of our flag. (What the red, white and blue symbolizes and when it was introduced into congress).

V. Learn the average weight and height of a healthy baby at birth and what they should gain in each month for one year.

VI. Bandaging (Roller, triangular and the use of the tourniquet).

VII. Learn two Campfire songs.

Miss Laipple talked to the group two weeks ago on birds. She spoke on how to distinguish those which are harmful from those which are unharmful; how to protect them and how useful birds are.

This group has not its quota of members as yet, and any girl under sixteen may join.

For those who are wondering what to do for a living after graduation, the Sophomoric Sage offers a suggestion. Let them apply for jobs as floor walker in an angel foundry. Lest they think that the sage is endeavoring to be funny, he hastens to inform them that such positions should be easily obtained in this day and age. Watchers are always necessary at grade crossings.

Convention Thoughts

By ZANE SMITH

Upon returning from the annual convention of the National Scholastic Press Association it occurred to me that there was only one thing lacking which would have made the conference even a greater success than it proved to be. That factor was that all high school students everywhere could not have been guests of the N. S. P. A. at their wonderful convention in Minneapolis last Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. It was by no means a dry and tiresome affair as one might imagine a press conference to be, but was chock full of fun and entertaining features.

The banquet at the New Nicollet Hotel Friday evening was the most interesting and yet amusing that I have ever attended. A thousand delegates from 22 states including as far east as Washington and as far south as Virginia and Tennessee, were assembled within the brilliantly illuminated ballroom of Minneapolis' most beautiful hotel. Cedric Adams, of the Minneapolis Star, "there is only one such," acted as Master of Ceremonies. There was not a dull moment all evening. "Cabbages," as comedy by Edward Staadt, university director, with an all university cast was produced for the N. S. P. A. by special request.

Clyde S. LaClair, a very clever and puzzling magician entertained us with a few of his famous tricks among which was the notorious needle threading stunt.

"Pi" Thompson, one of the best of the big ten cheer leaders conducted some experiments in mob-psychology which was followed by the Alpha Chi Omega chorus and the noted WCCO radio orchestra which offered all the latest popular selections in an exceedingly pleasing manner. (In other words—Hot, and How!) It is beyond doubt that the convention banquet will linger in the memories of all who attended, long after the conference itself has been forgotten.

The real purpose of the press convention was certainly accomplished and we have brought back with us many new ideas which we will put to use in our own school paper to make it one of the best which any student would be proud to call his own.

Events Announced for Interclass Track Meet

Individuals who plan to enter the inter-class track meet should be working on special or favorite events. Medals or minor letters will be given to the first place winners in each event. The winners in most cases will be those who are to be placed in the events of the district track meet which is to be held May 18 at Little Falls.

The following events will be on the list for the inter-class track meet which will be held the week-end of May 11, if the weather permits:

Track—50 yard dash, 100 yard dash, 220 yard dash, 440 yard dash, half mile run, 120 yard high hurdles, 220 yard low hurdles; half mile relay (4 men) each man runs 220 yards; medley relay 880-440-300-120, 1st man runs 120 yards, 2nd man runs 300 yards, 3rd man runs 440 yards, 4th man runs 880—total, one mile.

Each class should organize to have a well balanced team, for a pennant will be given to the class winners.

First place will give 5 points.
Second place will give 3 points.
Third place will give 1 point.
Relay scoer—1st, 5; 2nd, 3; 3rd, 1.

Rotarians Entertained By Teachers Tuesday

The teachers of the Brainerd schools entertained the Rotarians on last Tuesday at the Presbyterian church. Just to give variety to the entertainment, they used the prison motif throughout. Barred windows, rock piles and picks furnished the decorations. Clad in gray caps with black numbers, the men marched in and out to the lockstep. With Mr. Elden and Mr. LaMeter to see that they obeyed prison regulations, all went well. The pathetic feature of the program was Mr. LaMeter singing the "Prisoner's Song" from the padded cell, with Miss Rickard giving Comfort in "Throw Out the Life Line." Hearts of everyone would have been moved by the sob in Mr. LaMeter's voice. The other high school talent was displayed by Muisto Pohjola and Helen Bane, with Miss Tornstrom presiding as the president of the Uplift society. The various teachers of the town served on committees to prepare the program and details of decoration.

TRI-HI DELEGATES TO ATTEND CONFERENCE

Monday was the bi-weekly meeting of the Tri-Hi. The club voted for a certain type of pin, which may be accepted as the national Tri-Hi pin.

Alice Peterson and Alberta Smith were chosen to represent the Tri-Hi at the Girls' Conference in Duluth.

A Mothers' and Daughters' banquet was considered but no definite plans were formulated.

CONVENTION ECHOES

By ROGER KLEVEN

Before a crowd of about 1,000 student journalists assembled in the armory the National Scholastic Press Association opened its convention Thursday, April 11 at 7:45 P. M. with an address by Prof. E. Marion Johnson of the Department of Journalism, University of Minnesota. Prof. Johnson spoke on "That Thing Called Journalism." Friday's program opened at 8:45 with a speech by Samuel M. Williams, Editor-in-Chief of the St. Paul Dispatch and Picneer Press. Mr. Williams' humorous manner in his address, "The Newspaper Man of Tomorrow" drew many a chuckle from his audience. After the convocation, the official convention picture was snapped, which was followed by a series of 2 round-table discussions held in various buildings on the campus. At 1:30 the same afternoon another convocation was held, the topic of which was, "Brains, Brawn and Bunk" given by James C. Lawrence, Administrative Executive at the U. of M. Two more sessions or round-table groups were held Friday afternoon. At 6:30 Friday evening the brightest event in the convention schedule was held, the banquet in the New Nicollet Hotel. The banquet and entertainment was the best obtainable and was enjoyed to the utmost by the delegates.

Fred W. Beckman, Editor of the "Farmer's Wife" gave the address at the Saturday morning convocation after which there were 3 roundtable groups.

The final convocation was given by Neil M. Swanson, Managing Editor of the Minneapolis Journal. The topic was "Journalism As a Life Work." After the final announcements and reports, the convention adjourned.

All these speeches were concerned with newspaper life and the speakers made clear the fact that journalism has its sorrows as well as its joys, but all the embryo journalists present were fired by an enthusiasm to carry on the work allotted to them with the hope of presenting to their respective high schools better and finer editions.

We who were present were likewise animated and we hope to accomplish mush as a result of this convention.

Brainerd Host to District Typists Saturday, April 20

B. H. S. REPRESENTED IN LITERARY PUBLICATION

Brainerd High School was highly honored this year by being represented in the "Gateway," a Minnesota High School Anthology issued once every two years under the auspices of Macalester College. The publication contains the finest of all high school literary efforts. The article that Brainerd High School contributed was William McClenahan's essay entitled "One of Ten Thousand," a vivid description of a northern Minnesota lake scene for which he received the first prize in the state-wide contest sponsored by the Isaac Walton League last fall—the purpose of the contest being to arouse an interest in the beauty of Minnesota.

St. Cloud, Minneapolis, Belgrade, Rochester, and Duluth were among those schools represented in the magazine.

Brainerd is exceedingly proud of Billy McClenahan who succeeded in placing us among the honored few who are represented in this exclusive paper.

This paper is a great invention;
The school gets all the fame;
The printer gets the money
And we (the staff) get all the blame.

Evodia Carlson, pupil of Miss Evelyn Hanson of McPhail School of Music, participated in a piano recital given at the school auditorium in Minneapolis Thursday evening. Liszt's "Liebestraum" and "Seguidilla" by Albiniz were Evodia's contributions to the program.

Telling all the eager farmers,
"Take your grain and sow."

April breezes in the oak trees.
Murmur to us tales of woe;
How they suffered through the winter,
When earth lay beneath the snow.

Then the murmur turns to singing
And they sing out loud and clear,
"Sorrow, worry, hardships over,
Spring again is once more here!"

GRADE PUPIL SUGGESTS NAME FOR B. H. S. TEAM

The following letter was received by Coach Kasch in regard to the name to be selected for his future athletes.

Lowell School, 5th Grade.
March 24, 1929

Dear Mr. Kasch:

I would suggest that you call the Brainerd team the "Woodticks." They are stickers and we have lots of them around Brainerd.

Signed,
A Grade Schooler.

A special Freshman meeting was called by the president last Friday, the chief purpose being the collection of tardy dues. Class colors, pins and rings were also discussed. No definite settlement was made however, the cause of the delay being the need of replenishing the treasury.

YE EDITOR

During our absence while attending the National Scholastic Press Association convention in Minneapolis last week, the material for this issue of the Brainonian was prepared by the three Senior members of the staff, Edith Titus, Lois White and Edith Heald. We are very grateful to these girls for relieving us this week so we were able to attend the conference without having to worry. We especially wish to thank the school for the wonderful opportunity offered us and we believe that we have profited a great deal from the convention. The suggestions and ideas received there were exceedingly helpful and we will attempt to put them into practice in our own Brainonian to make it a bigger and better paper.

PROS AND CONS

We are awaiting Senior Dress-up Day with breathless interest. We want to stand by and watch the usual parade of coons, gypsies and rustic Reubens. Two to one, we'll bet there'll be some.

Have you heard the latest "High Hat" song? The Rotarians heard it at the banquet given them by the faculty last week. It goes like this: "Now, if High Hat the Wings of an Angel" and it can be sung very touchingly by Mr. LaMeter.

To Spring (With Incidental Music)

TRA LA LA LA LA LA,
SPRING IS HERE AGAIN;
TRA LA LA LA LA LA—
Well, what are you going to do about it?

THOUGHTS WHILE STROLLING TO CLASS AT THE COURT HOUSE: I'd better hurry—No, here comes a train to bar my pathway—Pshaw, it's only an engine—I can't demonstrate that theorem—Should have stayed in last night and studied for a change—What to do? What to do? Some mountains are only bluffs—I'll try one—Here's class—Oh, Well!

Pet Peeves

The girl who chews life savers.
The teacher who doesn't announce quizzes.
The boy who snaps his gum.

We understand that the Brainonian adviser was very much disappointed when Senior dress-up day was postponed. Space must be filled. Do your best for the next issue, Seniors.

One of our faculty rushed up to a Brainerd policeman last week and screeched, "Officer, officer, that fellow was getting fresh with me." "Just one moment, madam," answered the policeman, "and I'll arrest the poor, crazy fellow."

Do you remember any telephone conversation you may have had when the other fellow playfully told you to "guess who this is"? Well, you don't know who wrote this column and we don't care to reveal our identity, so we too, coyly ask you to guess who did it.

If any students plan to go to Italy next summer, remember you don't have to eat the skins to enjoy bologna.

I know it is not proper,
I know it is not nice,
But the bird who howls the loudest
Usually gets the extra slice.

ALUMNI

Charles Van Alstine, who graduated in 1920, visited at school Thursday. Charles has just returned from mining copper in Chile. Three years and a half in the southland convinced him that North America is a better place to live in. He has had many interesting experiences, and prefers that they be a background in his life rather than something to go back to. He expects to spend a month in Brainerd.

MRS. J. A. THABES GIVES ILLUSTRATED BIRD LECTURE TO BIOLOGY STUDENTS

THE FACULTY

Brainerd claims to have the honor of being the birthplace of Miss Winifred Spencer, our math instructor.

She attended the Whittier school and later our local high school. After graduating here, Miss Spencer left for Carleton College where she majored in mathematics.

After completing her course at Northfield, Miss Spencer taught at Ashby, Minnesota, and then returned to her home town. This is her first year at Brainerd, but we hope that she will remain as a member of our faculty for many long years.

Her main hobby is driving and the Freshmen have been fortunate in securing her as their adviser.

Mrs. Cobb Reviews Book Before Social Class

Mrs. W. C. Cobb reviewed James J. Davis' recent book on "Selective Immigration" before Miss Herwig's Social Problems class last Tuesday morning. This book is considered one of the best available on immigration today and the class was very fortunate in having one so capable as Mrs. Cobb to review it for them.

The review showed that immigration must be restricted for social, political and economic reasons. The best law thus far passed is the 2 per cent law of 1924 and it is hoped that this law may be restored by the special congressional session.

The class is very grateful to Mrs. Cobb for having given so unselfishly of her time and energy in this excellent review.

LECTURE GIVEN FRIDAY MORNING IN COURT HOUSE ASSEMBLY

On Friday in the hour before noon, Mrs. J. A. Thabes gave a bird lecture with colored slides to all the biology students. About two hundred listened to her very interesting talk. Due to the inconveniences of the old court house, it was impossible to get the room sufficiently dark to get the full benefit of the slides, but the explanations more than made up for the blurring of the pictures.

The theme of Mrs. Thabes' speech was the migrations of the birds. In the course of her talk she gave some very pertinent facts as to the number and variety of birds in Minnesota at the various seasons of the year: i. e. there are 312 species of birds in Minnesota, of which 216 nest here and 37 are permanent residents.

She spoke of the great drama now going on, when birds are travelling thousands of miles guided by some unknown force that gives strength to the ruby throated humming bird to cross the 700 miles of Gulf in one night without stopping, to the Black Polled Warbler to travel from Venezuela ot Alaska; and to the heron gulls to keep so close to the calendar that they time their long journey so that their arrival here varies by only two or three days from year to year. She mentioned, too, that the bird banding system of today would prove in a few years whether or not the blue-jay that winters here is the same one that seems to appear suddenly in the spring.

In addition to facts and figures, she made some interesting statements about various birds, such as the ruby throated humming bird is the only one that can put its "engine in reverse" and back up, and remain almost motionless in the air; that the brown creeper braces himself on a tree trunk by his tail; that the heron gull appears when the ice is just melting along the shore; that at Gull lake is the largest heron refuge in the United States; that the varied diet of birds saves civilization; that the horned lark is the earliest immigrant, appearing in early February and laying its eggs before the snow is gone, and that the even bird goes to school, for all day he says, "Teacher, teacher."

These are but a few of the facts imparted to the students today. As they are just now studying the birds, they thoroughly enjoyed and appreciated Mrs. Thabes' talk.

CAMPFIRE GIRLS WORK FOR HONORS AT PARTY

The girls had a progressive party last Wednesday evening at the city hall. Honors were given at each table for the following work:

I. Wrap 3 packages. (Something fragile, something soft and a box).

II. Read a fever thermometer. (Know how to sterilize it, and know the average temperature of adults and children).

III. Know the history and writer of "The Star Spangled Banner" and "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

IV. Learn the origin of our flag. (What the red, white and blue symbolizes and when it was introduced into congress).

V. Learn the average weight and height of a healthy baby at birth and what they should gain in each month for one year.

VI. Bandaging (Roller, triangular and the use of the tourniquet).

VII. Learn two Campfire songs.

Miss Laipple talked to the group two weeks ago on birds. She spoke on how to distinguish those which are harmful from those which are unharmful; how to protect them and how useful birds are.

This group has not its quota of members as yet, and any girl under sixteen may join.

For those who are wondering what to do for a living after graduation, the Sophomoric Sage offers a suggestion. Let them apply for jobs as floor walker in an angel foundry. Lest they think that the sage is endeavoring to be funny, he hastens to inform them that such positions should be easily obtained in this day and age. Watchers are always necessary at grade crossings.

Convention Thoughts

By ZANE SMITH

Upon returning from the annual convention of the National Scholastic Press Association it occurred to me that there was only one thing lacking which would have made the conference even a greater success than it proved to be. That factor was that all high school students everywhere could not have been guests of the N. S. P. A. at their wonderful convention in Minneapolis last Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. It was by no means a dry and tiresome affair as one might imagine a press conference to be, but was chock full of fun and entertaining features.

The banquet at the New Nicollet Hotel Friday evening was the most interesting and yet amusing that I have ever attended. A thousand delegates from 22 states including as far east as Washington and as far south as Virginia and Tennessee, were assembled within the brilliantly illuminated ballroom of Minneapolis' most beautiful hotel. Cedric Adams, of the Minneapolis Star, "there is only one such," acted as Master of Ceremonies. There was not a dull moment all evening. "Cabbages," as comedy by Edward Staadt, university director, with an all university cast was produced for the N. S. P. A. by special request.

Clyde S. LaClair, a very clever and puzzling magician entertained us with a few of his famous tricks among which was the notorious needle threading stunt.

"Pi" Thompson, one of the best of the big ten cheer leaders conducted some experiments in mob-psyschology which was followed by the Alpha Chi Omega chorus and the noted WCCO radio orchestra which offered all the latest popular selections in an exceedingly pleasing manner. (In other words—Hot, and How!) It is beyond doubt that the convention banquet will linger in the memories of all who attended, long after the conference itself has been forgotten.

The real purpose of the press convention was certainly accomplished and we have brought back with us many new ideas which we will put to use in our own school paper to make it one of the best which any student would be proud to call his own.

Rotarians Entertained By Teachers Tuesday

The teachers of the Brainerd schools entertained the Rotarians on last Tuesday at the Presbyterian church. Just to give variety to the entertainment, they used the prison motif throughout. Barred windows, rock piles and picks furnished the decorations. Clad in gray caps with black numbers, the men marched in and out to the lockstep. With Mr. Elden and Mr. LaMeter to see that they obeyed prison regulations, all went well. The pathetic feature of the program was Mr. LaMeter singing the "Prisoner's Song" from the padded cell, with Miss Rickard giving Comfort in "Throw Out the Life Line." Hearts of everyone would have been moved by the sob in Mr. LaMeter's voice. The other high school talent was displayed by Muisto Pohjola and Helen Bane, with Miss Tornstrom presiding as the president of the Uplift society. The various teachers of the town served on committees to prepare the program and details of decoration.

TRI-HI DELEGATES TO ATTEND CONFERENCE

Monday was the bi-weekly meeting of the Tri-Hi. The club voted for a certain type of pin, which may be accepted as the national Tri-Hi pin.

Alice Peterson and Alberta Smith were chosen to represent the Tri-Hi at the Girls' Conference in Duluth.

A Mothers' and Daughters' banquet was considered but no definite plans were formulated.

BIDS ASKED FOR LATERAL SEWER

Affecting 72 Lots Between 3rd and 5th Avenues, H and I Streets

RETURNABLE MAY 20

Residents in Block 10 Granted Permission to Connect With District Sewer No. 3

On motion of Aldermen Ernest Ritari and V. E. Quanstrom the city council last evening instructed City Engineer R. T. Campbell to advertise for bids for the construction of a lateral sewer affecting 72 lots between Third and Fifth avenues and H and I streets, bids to be returned to the city council by May 20.

The request of property owners in Block 10, Sleepers Addition to Brainerd as outlined in a petition for permission to connect their respective properties in the block with district sewer No. 3 on 14th street, S. E. between Maple and Norwood streets was granted.

Thirteen residents petitioned the council to prohibit Reinhold Hanski who operates a bath house at 1102 E. Norwood street from burning soft coal for his bath house as it creates a smoke nuisance. The petition was referred to the mayor and the police committee to report back to the city council.

Among the objections raised to Mr. Hanski using soft coal was that the smoke blackened newly washed clothes on lines in that locality.

No objection was raised to the bath house itself. Smoke objectors suggested that Mr. Hanski use hard coal or wood as a smoke remedy.

MANY BENEFIT FROM SVEA SICK

Society Shows Balance in Treasury at Present Time of $2600

At the eighteenth annual business meeting of the Svea Sick Benefit society, Financial Secretary and Treasurer John Headman gave a very interesting report showing the financial condition of the society.

The Svea Sick Benefit society was organized April 1, 1911, and has been in existence 18 years. The society started with a charter membership of five, all of whom are still living, being August Lind, John Headman, Erick Olson, Erick O. Anderson and Ellis Erickson.

The society is a mutual sick benefit organization among the Scandinavian people of this community, and pays a sick benefit and a stated sum for funeral expenses. During the past 18 years they have had a total membership of 363, many of whom have left the city and dropped their membership. At the present time there are 152 active members.

Since the society was organized, there have been 15 deaths among the members. August Lind, a charter member, has the honor of being the only one who has not drawn any benefits during his membership. The organization has paid out $11,241.25 in sick benefits and $1,100 in funeral expenses. At the present time there is a balance of approximately $2,600 in the treasury.

Drive this Car

PUT IT TO THESE ELEVEN TESTS

The only true test of performance is personal experience. Take a trial drive in an Oldsmobile and find out for yourself, not only what it does, but how it does it. Match it against other cars and make comparisons. Give it these eleven tests . . . or any others . . . and check results by any standard of performance you care to set.

1. TEST EASE OF CONTROL
When you relax in the driver's seat, notice its comfort—the convenient arrangement of controls and dash instruments. Try the new Fisher adjustable front seat. Oldsmobile's adjustable steering wheel adds to your comfort. Step on the starter and note its prompt engagement. Test the easy action of the clutch—the silent, easily-meshed gear-shift.

2. TEST GETAWAY
Observe how easily and smoothly Oldsmobile gets away from the curb—how easy it is to steer. Pull up to a stoplight. Then flash ahead when the signal says "Go." Measure Oldsmobile's swift, stageless pick-up in all gears.

3. TEST HANDLING EASE
Drive through thickest traffic. Learn how Oldsmobile's instant response to accelerator, brakes, and steering wheel simplifies city driving. At any speed, in traffic or on the road, Oldsmobile is easy to handle and restful to drive.

4. TEST SMOOTHNESS
Drive Oldsmobile out on the open road. Cover the face of the speedometer with glove or handkerchief . . . take your accustomed touring pace . . . then note the speedometer reading . . . you will be astonished to find how fast you are traveling.

5. TEST RIDING COMFORT
Oldsmobile seats are wide and deep-cushioned. Interiors are roomy and restful. Four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers function in harmony with Oldsmobile's special alloy-steel springs to smooth out all road irregularities. Drive this finer Oldsmobile over choppy pavements, over ruts and bumps. Whether you take them at high speeds or slow, you'll find that all roads ride comfortably in an Oldsmobile.

6. TEST ACCELERATION IN HIGH GEAR
When you pass other cars on the road, mark Oldsmobile's quick response to the throttle in all speed ranges—the smooth, effortless surge of power that enables you to sweep into the lead easily and surely.

7. TEST SPEED
Seek a straight, level stretch of highway and give Oldsmobile its head. You'll thrill to speeds far higher than the average motorist ever uses. Yet you'll feel secure, perfectly relaxed—for Oldsmobile speed is as restful as it is exhilarating.

8. TEST HILL-CLIMBING ABILITY
Send Oldsmobile up the longest, steepest hill you know. Start at the bottom at various speeds. You'll find the tremendous power reserve in Oldsmobile's big 62-horsepower engine gives it wonderful hill-climbing ability. If it's power you want, you can't match this Oldsmobile at its new lower price.

9. TEST ROADABILITY
One of the greatest joys in driving this finer Oldsmobile results from its splendid roadability. A low center of gravity, balanced weight, and four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers all are contributing factors in Oldsmobile's ability to hug the road at any speed.

10. TEST THE BRAKES
Check Oldsmobile's braking system for ability. Oldsmobile's four-wheel safety brakes not only are exceptionally efficient, but are smooth, quiet, and easy to operate as well.

11. TEST PARKING EASE
Deliberately select a small space at the curb and park this Oldsmobile. Fingertip steering and a short turning radius make it easy to slip into small parking places. The easy clutch, brake, and gear-shift action allows you to take full advantage of every inch of space.

These eleven tests will give you a comprehensive idea of all phases of Oldsmobile performance. They also afford an excellent basis of comparison with other cars. Thousands of motorists who have given Oldsmobile these and other tests have made it the car of their choice. BIDS ASKED FOR LATERAL SEWER

RETURNABLE MAY 20

Residents in Block 10 Granted Permission to Connect With District Sewer No. 3

On motion of Aldermen Ernest Ritari and V. E. Quanstrom the city council last evening instructed City Engineer R. T. Campbell to advertise for bids for the construction of a lateral sewer affecting 72 lots between Third and Fifth avenues and H and I streets, bids to be returned to the city council by May 20.

The request of property owners in Block 10, Sleepers Addition to Brainerd as outlined in a petition for permission to connect their respective properties in the block with district sewer No. 3 on 14th street, S. E. between Maple and Norwood streets was granted.

Thirteen residents petitioned the council to prohibit Reinhold Hanski who operates a bath house at 1102 E. Norwood street from burning soft coal for his bath house as it creates a smoke nuisance. The petition was referred to the mayor and the police committee to report back to the city council.

Among the objections raised to Mr. Hanski using soft coal was that the smoke blackened newly washed clothes on lines in that locality.

No objection was raised to the bath house itself. Smoke objectors suggested that Mr. Hanski use hard coal, or wood as a smoke remedy.

Society Shows Balance in Treasury at Present Time of $2600

At the eighteenth annual business meeting of the Svea Sick Benefit society, Financial Secretary and Treasurer John Headman gave a very interesting report showing the financial condition of the society.

The Svea Sick Benefit society was organized April 1, 1911, and has been in existence 18 years. The society started with a charter membership of five, all of whom are still living, being August Lind, John Headman, Erick Olson, Erick O. Anderson and Ellis Erickson.

The society is a mutual sick benefit organization among the Scandinavian people of this community, and pays a sick benefit and a stated sum for funeral expenses. During the past 18 years they have had a total membership of 363, many of whom have left the city and dropped their membership. At the present time there are 152 active members.

Since the society was organized, there have been 15 deaths among the members. August Lind, a charter member, has the honor of being the only one who has not drawn any benefits during his membership. The organization has paid out $11,241.25 in sick benefits and $1,100 in funeral expenses. At the present time there is a balance of approximately $2,600 in the treasury.

Drive this Car

PUT IT TO THESE ELEVEN TESTS

The only true test of performance is personal experience. Take a trial drive in an Oldsmobile and find out for yourself, not only what it does, but how it does it. Match it against other cars and make comparisons. Give it these eleven tests . . . or any others . . . and check results by any standard of performance you care to set.

1. TEST EASE OF CONTROL
When you relax in the driver's seat, notice its comfort—the convenient arrangement of controls and dash instruments. Try the new Fisher adjustable front seat. Oldsmobile's adjustable steering wheel adds to your comfort. Step on the starter and note its prompt engagement. Test the easy action of the clutch—the silent, easily-meshed gear-shift.

2. TEST GETAWAY
Observe how easily and smoothly Oldsmobile gets away from the curb—how easy it is to steer. Pull up to a stoplight. Then flash ahead when the signal says "Go." Measure Oldsmobile's swift, stageless pick-up in all gears.

3. TEST HANDLING EASE
Drive through thickest traffic. Learn how Oldsmobile's instant response to accelerator, brakes, and steering wheel simplifies city driving. At any speed, in traffic or on the road, Oldsmobile is easy to handle and restful to drive.

4. TEST SMOOTHNESS
Drive Oldsmobile out on the open road. Cover the face of the speedometer with glove or handkerchief . . . take your accustomed touring pace . . . then note the speedometer reading . . . you will be astonished to find how fast you are traveling.

5. TEST RIDING COMFORT
Oldsmobile seats are wide and deep-cushioned. Interiors are roomy and restful. Four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers function in harmony with Oldsmobile's special alloy-steel springs to smooth out all road irregularities. Drive this finer Oldsmobile over choppy pavements, over ruts and bumps. Whether you take them at high speeds or slow, you'll find that all roads ride comfortably in an Oldsmobile.

6. TEST ACCELERATION IN HIGH GEAR
When you pass other cars on the road, mark Oldsmobile's quick response to the throttle in all speed ranges—the smooth, effortless surge of power that enables you to sweep into the lead easily and surely.

7. TEST SPEED
Seek a straight, level stretch of highway and give Oldsmobile its head. You'll thrill to speeds far higher than the average motorist ever uses. Yet you'll feel secure, perfectly relaxed—for Oldsmobile speed is as restful as it is exhilarating.

8. TEST HILL-CLIMBING ABILITY
Send Oldsmobile up the longest, steepest hill you know. Start at the bottom at various speeds. You'll find the tremendous power reserve in Oldsmobile's big 62-horsepower engine gives it wonderful hill-climbing ability. If it's power you want, you can't match this Oldsmobile at its new lower price.

9. TEST ROADABILITY
One of the greatest joys in driving this finer Oldsmobile results from its splendid roadability. A low center of gravity, balanced weight, and four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers all are contributing factors in Oldsmobile's ability to hug the road at any speed.

10. TEST THE BRAKES
Check Oldsmobile's braking system for ability. Oldsmobile's four-wheel safety brakes not only are exceptionally efficient, but are smooth, quiet, and easy to operate as well.

11. TEST PARKING EASE
Deliberately select a small space at the curb and park this Oldsmobile. Fingertip steering and a short turning radius make it easy to slip into small parking places. The easy clutch, brake, and gear-shift action allows you to take full advantage of every inch of space.

These eleven tests will give you a comprehensive idea of all phases of Oldsmobile performance. They also afford an excellent basis of comparison with other cars. Thousands of motorists who have given Oldsmobile these and other tests have made it the car of their choice. Come, drive this car and judge it, at its new lower price, by your own standards of performance and value.

CHAPTER LXXX.

LILITH, left alone, moved restlessly about in her room, arranging her hair, unpacking her bags, attending to trivial details. Sheba came in once or twice on sullen errands, to bring her ice water, to turn down the covers of the bed, to see if there was anything she needed, but her presence made the girl nervous, so at last she told her there was nothing else she wished. Sheba padded out on her silent feet.

But how peculiar that that odor should persist, when there was nothing, simply nothing, on fire in the room? And it was long ago that she had thrown those ashes out of the window.

She shivered and drew the covers about her, though the Spring night was pleasantly warm. The shadows were queer shapes on the floor; the furniture was like strange, fantastic objects against the walls, in a room where there was no light except the pale glow from the glimmering window squares. She would close her eyes to shut them out. But they seemed to move closer, to threaten her, when she couldn't see them. Better to keep her eyes open wide, and watch, till Dan came. . .

Lilith walked to the window and looked out at the friendly scene, the garden, the quiet, tree-shadowed street, the neighborly houses. It was good to be at home, forgiven, loved again.

As she started to leave the room, to go down to the study where she could hear a babble of voices, at the door she saw an odd something and stooped to pick it up. It was a rag, tied in the semblance of a tiny doll, clumsily made, with a few strands of golden hair wrapped round it. Her thoughts flashed back a year and a half to another time when Sheba had stolen hair from her comb. Sheba and her voodoo! She smiled in scorn of jungle superstition. Queer old Sheba!

Then she shivered slightly and let the object drop from her hand. She stared at it with growing repugnance. Then she picked it up again, in fingers that recoiled from the contact, and threw it into the wastebasket. Ugh!

"The hair of the victim is needed for the voodoo!" someone had said.

She turned once more to go downstairs, but paused on the threshold. Better not let that thing lie around where anyone could see it and ask questions. She lighted a candle on the bedside table and held the conjure rag over it in the fireplace till it curled and smoked and smelled—till it dropped into evil-odored ashes, which she ground under her feet. She started again to leave the room. Then, on second thought, she gathered the ashes carefully on a piece of paper and emptied them out of the window.

"The hair of the victim is needed for vodoo!"

A tap on the door startled her to rigidity. But it was only Dan.

"Why don't you come on downstairs, dear? Your father wants to see you?"

"I was just coming."

He sniffed the air. "Smells like something burning."

"Just a bit of hair I singed," she hastily explained.

He caught her hand in his and drew her down with him to join the others.

Downstairs in the study she felt more at ease when her father beckoned her to sit beside him on the couch, and encircled her with his arm.

"Been gone so long," he murmured.

"But now I'm home," she said.

Doctor Will and Tina were sitting in a shadowy corner, and Pat was humped on a low stool at Dan's feet, asking eager questions about India and Japan, to which he gave answers in detail. Irene, in her rocker by the window, watched the group and had a word for each one in turn.

Lilith leaned against her father, slipped her arms about his neck and gave him a kiss of spontaneous uncalculating affection. The talk went softly on, everybody joining in it but Tina.

Only when a brief silence fell, they could hear Sheba singing in the kitchen, as she rattled the dishes:

At the Door Lilith Saw an Odd Something and Stooped to Pick It Up.

"'Frankie was a good woman,
As everybody knows;
She bought her po' Albert
A brand-new suit of clo'es.
He was her man,
But he do-one her wrong!

"'Rubber-tired carriage,
Kansas City hack
Took po' Albert to the graveyard
But forgot to bring him ba-ck.
He was her man,
But he do-one her wrong!'"

The doctor said, "Irene, I imagine Lilith's tired after her long trip. Better send her to bed."

She rose and held out her hand. "Come, Lilith. You know we all mind Doctor Will when he speaks."

Her father rose with her and murmured, so softly that on one but Lilith and Irene heard it: "Take good care of yourself, darling. It makes me so happy to think of—your first baby!"

She hid her face an instant on his breast. Then Irene slipped an arm about her and the two went upstairs together.

After the mother had helped her to prepare for bed, had tucked the covers about her as she used to do when she was a child, had turned the light off and left her, Lilith stretched out to compose herself for sleep. Darkness folded in the room, save for the glimmering window squares, and all was quiet—so restful after the clatter of train wheels night after night. She lay drowsily content, as thoughts sifted through her brain too wakeful yet for slumber—images, not clear-cut as in waking hours, but vague and glamorous. Far cities drifted past her vision—Bombay, Cairo, Yokohama, Honolulu. . . .

She roused and stirred a little, thinking she smelled something burning. She sat up and looked about her, but there was nothing there, no flicker of light. She lay back against her pillows, with her cheek on one hand, like a child, . . . So good to be at home. . . . . Still she seemed to smell faintly an odor of burning—was it a rag or was it a hair? She twisted restlessly from side to side. She wouldn't be foolish and nervous, she told herself. She would go to sleep, because Doctor Will had said she needed rest . . . rest.

But how peculiar that that odor should persist, when there was nothing, simply nothing, on fire in the room? And it was long ago that she had thrown those ashes out of the window.

She shivered and drew the covers about her, though the Spring night was pleasantly warm. The shadows were queer shapes on the floor; the furniture was like strange, fantastic objects against the walls, in a room where there was no light except the pale glow from the glimmering window squares. She would close her eyes to shut them out. But they seemed to move closer, to threaten her, when she couldn't see them. Better to keep her eyes open, wide, and watch, till Dan came . . .

She clenched her hands and held her body rigid, quivering. If she called out, she would have to explain and she mustn't do that—mustn't get old Sheba in for a scolding.

Her thoughts flashed from one thing to another, like restless, frightened lizards — voodoo tales that Sheba had whispered to the children after nightfall on the back porch.

"And once there was a man what done a woman wrong. She went to the conjure 'ooman an' ask her what to do. 'Make a little rag doll, like as if it was him; wrop a stram' of his hair around it; put it un'erneath his do'step where he bound to pass over it. When he pass over it, the spell will start to wuck. He'll wither away an' die—an' 'tain't no doctor will know whut was the matter with him.'"

Of course, all that was nonsense—ignorant superstition. But the Indian magicians did strange, uncanny things. Who could explain them? . . .

She had stepped over the thing as she started to leave the room! Had passed over it, before she knew it was there—at the doorsill!

CHAPTER LXXX.

LILITH, left alone, moved restlessly about in her room, arranging her hair, unpacking her bags, attending to trivial details. Sheba came in once or twice on sullen errands, to bring her ice water, to turn down the covers of the bed, to see if there was anything she needed, but her presence made the girl nervous, so at last she told her there was nothing else she wished. Sheba padded out on her silent feet.

But how peculiar that that odor should persist, when there was nothing, simply nothing, on fire in the room? And it was long ago that she had thrown those ashes out of the window.

She shivered and drew the covers about her, though the Spring night was pleasantly warm. The shadows were queer shapes on the floor; the furniture was like strange, fantastic objects against the walls, in a room where there was no light except the pale glow from the glimmering window squares. She would close her eyes to shut them out. But they seemed to move closer, to threaten her, when she couldn't see them. Better to keep her eyes open wide, and watch, till Dan came. . .

Lilith walked to the window and looked out at the friendly scene, the garden, the quiet, tree-shadowed street, the neighborly houses. It was good to be at home, forgiven, loved again.

As she started to leave the room, to go down to the study where she could hear a babble of voices, at the door she saw an odd something and stooped to pick it up. It was a rag, tied in the semblance of a tiny doll, clumsily made, with a few strands of golden hair wrapped round it. Her thoughts flashed back a year and a half to another time when Sheba had stolen hair from her comb. Sheba and her voodoo! She smiled in scorn of jungle superstition. Queer old Sheba!

Then she shivered slightly and let the object drop from her hand. She stared at it with growing repugnance. Then she picked it up again, in fingers that recoiled from the contact, and threw it into the wastebasket. Ugh!

"The hair of the victim is needed for the voodoo!" someone had said.

She turned once more to go downstairs, but paused on the threshold. Better not let that thing lie around where anyone could see it and ask questions. She lighted a candle on the bedside table and held the conjure rag over it in the fireplace till it curled and smoked and smelled—till it dropped into evil-odored ashes, which she ground under her feet. She started again to leave the room. Then, on second thought, she gathered the ashes carefully on a piece of paper and emptied them out of the window.

"The hair of the victim is needed for vodoo!"

A tap on the door startled her to rigidity. But it was only Dan.

"Why don't you come on downstairs, dear? Your father wants to see you?"

"I was just coming."

He sniffed the air. "Smells like something burning."

"Just a bit of hair I singed," she hastily explained.

He caught her hand in his and drew her down with him to join the others.

Downstairs in the study she felt more at ease when her father beckoned her to sit beside him on the couch, and encircled her with his arm.

"Been gone so long," he murmured.

"But now I'm home," she said.

Doctor Will and Tina were sitting in a shadowy corner, and Pat was humped on a low stool at Dan's feet, asking eager questions about India and Japan, to which he gave answers in detail. Irene, in her rocker by the window, watched the group and had a word for each one in turn.

Lilith leaned against her father, slipped her arms about his neck and gave him a kiss of spontaneous uncalculating affection. The talk went softly on, everybody joining in it but Tina.

Only when a brief silence fell, they could hear Sheba singing in the kitchen, as she rattled the dishes:

At the Door Lilith Saw an Odd Something and Stooped to Pick It Up.

"'Frankie was a good woman,
As everybody knows;
She bought her po' Albert
A brand-new suit of clo'es.
He was her man,
But he do-one her wrong!

"'Rubber-tired carriage,
Kansas City hack
Took po' Albert to the graveyard
But forgot to bring him ba-ck.
He was her man,
But he do-one her wrong!'"

The doctor said, "Irene, I imagine Lilith's tired after her long trip. Better send her to bed."

She rose and held out her hand. "Come, Lilith. You know we all mind Doctor Will when he speaks."

Her father rose with her and murmured, so softly that on one but Lilith and Irene heard it: "Take good care of yourself, darling. It makes me so happy to think of—your first baby!"

She hid her face an instant on his breast. Then Irene slipped an arm about her and the two went upstairs together.

After the mother had helped her to prepare for bed, had tucked the covers about her as she used to do when she was a child, had turned the light off and left her, Lilith stretched out to compose herself for sleep. Darkness folded in the room, save for the glimmering window squares, and all was quiet—so restful after the clatter of train wheels night after night. She lay drowsily content, as thoughts sifted through her brain too wakeful yet for slumber—images, not clear-cut as in waking hours, but vague and glamorous. Far cities drifted past her vision—Bombay, Cairo, Yokohama, Honolulu. . . .

She roused and stirred a little, thinking she smelled something burning. She sat up and looked about her, but there was nothing there, no flicker of light. She lay back against her pillows, with her cheek on one hand, like a child, that she had thrown those ashes out of the window.

She shivered and drew the covers about her, though the Spring night was pleasantly warm. The shadows were queer shapes on the floor; the furniture was like strange, fantastic objects against the walls, in a room where there was no light except the pale glow from the glimmering window squares. She would close her eyes to shut them out. But they seemed to move closer, to threaten her, when she couldn't see them. Better to keep her eyes open, wide, and watch, till Dan came . . .

She clenched her hands and held her body rigid, quivering. If she called out, she would have to explain and she mustn't do that—mustn't get old Sheba in for a scolding.

Her thoughts flashed from one thing to another, like restless, frightened lizards—voodoo tales that Sheba had whispered to the children after nightfall on the back porch.

"And once there was a man what done a woman wrong. She went to the conjure 'ooman an' ask her what to do. 'Make a little rag doll, like as if it was him; wrop a stram' of his hair around it; put it un'erneath his do'step where he bound to pass over it. When he pass over it, the spell will start to wuck. He'll wither away an' die—an' 'tain't no doctor will know whut was the matter with him.'"

Of course, all that was nonsense—ignorant superstition. But the Indian magicians did strange, uncanny things. Who could explain them? . . .

She had stepped over the thing as she started to leave the room! Had passed over it, before she knew it was there—at the door-sill!

Wild Minks in Captivity

Wild minks can be raised in captivity without very much difficulty About 50 per cent of the wild minks will not breed the first year, but if they do not, usually they will breed the second at any rate. Minks are usually kept in pens about 8 feet long 6 feet wide, and 6 feet high for a pair

Ambitions Fade

The bright ambitions of youth are modified somewhat by the inexorable flight of time, and the man who started out some thirty years ago to conquer the world is now fairly well satisfied if he can keep from spilling the beans.

Why not have that window or door moved? It will make the room more convenient.

Keep youth longer!

cleanse the system of poisons

Two of the great enemies to youth and vitality are delayed elimination and intestinal poisons. To keep yourself free from both these common difficulties will help you to stay young.

With the use of Nujol you can do it too. For Nujol absorbs body poisons and carries them off, preventing their absorption by the body. Nujol also softens the waste matter and brings about normal evacuation. It is harmless; contains no drugs or medicine. It won't cause gas or griping pains, or affect the stomach or kidneys. Every corner druggist has Nujol. Make sure you get the genuine. Look for the Nujol bottle with the label on the back that you can read right through the bottle. Don't delay, get Nujol today.
